

Assassination attempt leaves Chile under siege

JUSAN FUGE
Editor

The state of seige declared by President Pinochet after an assassination attempt was made, could have an impact on attempts to garner support for reelection according to a BYU professor. Professor W. Ladd Hollist indicated that the military method of action Pinochet could use to stay in office for another term in the 1989 election. "He could try to hold an election now while he may have some sympathy from the Chilean people because of the assassination attempt and he may try to play on the sympathy, that nationalist support," Hollist said. "The people may not want him elected, but they don't want him assassinated either," he said. Hollist said that Pinochet may use the military method and have the legislative members appointed, Pinochet would have a good chance of retaining his position. Hollist, an associate professor in the political science department, just concluded a study on Brazilian government.

Another possibility that Hollist called "a long shot" is that the opposition groups could see this as their opportunity and rally together to overthrow Pinochet.

Another alternative would be to put off the election.

"He could have any thought of open elections denounced, saying, 'we are not yet ready to have an election, we must wait for stability to return to the country,'" Hollist said.

Pinochet was quoted in an article by The Associated Press as saying, "We are in a war between democracy and chaos. Either we accept the chaos that these degenerate politicians are pushing for, or we support the government, seeking democracy as a logical solution."

Pinochet has repeatedly declared that he wants to restore democracy according to the AP story, but he has maintained the dictatorship since he came into power in a military coup in 1973. He forced Marxist President Salvador Allende out of power.

Pinochet's comment about democracy was simply a political move, according to Hollist.

"He's a crafty, astute, political figure and he doesn't want to lose power," Hollist said.

Security forces in Chile arrested opposition leaders and raided leftist strongholds in slum areas to search for the would-be assassins who ambushed Pinochet's motorcade according to the AP.

Three leading dissidents and three French activist priests were among those said to be arrested.

"The government has enough support to do whatever it wants," Pinochet declared.

But Pinochet does not enjoy the popularity that he had in the early 1980's, before the recession. According to Hollist much of Pinochet's support at that time came from the business community, particularly those involved in exports.

Even though the recession has lifted, its impact is still being felt in the Latin American countries.

A chronically depressed economy and his failure to make any moves toward democracy has undermined Pinochet's popularity.

"Not even the business community is happy, they are disappointed by the regime," Hollist said.

Ticket voucher system deemed fair, successful

By BARBARA ARMSTRONG
Senior Reporter

Special Events officials and many football ticket owners agree this year's voucher distribution system is one of the most efficient and fair of any system ever tried at BYU.

"For the most part," said Larry Duffin, BYU ticket manager, "we have received favorable comments. We felt the distribution process went rather smoothly."

This year's voucher system was different from last year's ticket lottery in that students purchased a voucher prior to the ticket distribution date last Friday. On that day they exchanged the voucher for one season ticket for each of the six home games.

When the ticket office closed Thursday evening there were about 200 vouchers that had not been sold, Duffin said. By mid-morning Friday all of the vouchers had been claimed.

Although arriving early did not give students a chance at better seats, Duffin said about 3,000 students were in line outside the Marriott Center when the doors opened at 7 a.m.

Brad Ballard, a junior from Lake Oswego, Ore., majoring in psychology, was one student who lined up early. Ballard said he met at the ASB fountain with a club before going to the Marriott Center to get tickets. He said there were about 300 people from different clubs who met at that time.

ASBYU Athletics Vice President, Brent Baum, said he was happy with the distribution of the tickets. "Our overall feeling is that we are pleased. The distribution was handled very well."

Baum admitted some people at ASBYU were disappointed they didn't get block seating. "It is kind of unfortunate we don't have the block seating anymore because people like to sit together with friends. But that, as we have seen, can be worked out."

He added that in planning the new system, ASBYU and Special Events officials were "determined that each student, no matter who they were, get tickets by the same process."

Duffin said although Special Events officials are pleased with the new system, some changes could be expected in next year's system. This year, vouchers were available from the beginning of April until Friday when they sold out.

"So few students took advantage of that option," Duffin said referring to the 10,000 people who purchased vouchers before Sept. 27, "that it may not be necessary."

Committee debates

Surrogate motherhood

MYRON W. LEE
City Editor

Surrogate motherhood is a cause for concern to leaders of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and is raising ethical questions among medical leaders throughout America.

Just new infertility treatments, including producing so-called tube babies, are morally acceptable, but the practice of one woman carrying another's fetus should be restricted, according to medical ethics committee.

As far as the (LDS) church has spoken out on this issue, there is general concern with surrogate mothering," added Lester A. Allen, of the BYU Zoology Department. "There is the chance in some cases that the fetus will be damaged in the process of implantation." He explained that the adoptive parents may not want to accept a defective child.

Medical professionals, in order to engineer an official statement, issued the first major report from the American Fertility Society committee, Monday. The report examined the ethical aspects of new reproductive technology.

The group, consisting of doctors, lawyers and ethicists, said that procedures should be classified as experimental and not routinely until more is known about them. These include using frozen eggs, or ova, and using surrogate mothers to carry someone else's fetus until birth.

They also said practices such as artificial insemination and using donor sperm and eggs for producing test tube babies is morally acceptable in most cases.

Allen, who teaches a biological ethics class on campus, explained that the LDS church generally leaves the decision of surrogate mothering up to the individuals concerned. "There is really no official rule from the church," said Allen.

"They (the LDS church) caution individuals to consult their local priesthood leaders and act prayerfully and through personal inspiration," he said.

Members of the fertility society committee said they had "serious ethical reservations" about surrogate motherhood. The group called for "intensive scrutiny of the practice because of legal and ethical concerns, and because so much is unknown about the physical and psychological effects of the practice on the mothers and offspring involved."

The committee said it was ethically unacceptable to use surrogate motherhood for non-medical reasons, such as the convenience of not carrying a fetus to term, according to its chairman, Howard W. Jones Jr. of Eastern Virginia Medical School.

Hollands to speak at assembly

Administration hopes to promote attendance

By LEZLEA D. ARCHER
Universe Staff Writer

BYU President Jeffrey R. Holland and his wife, Patricia, will address the university community this morning at the annual President's "Welcome Back" Assembly.

The assembly, which will take place at 11 a.m. in the Marriott Center, marks the school year's first devotional. It also marks the initiation of a series of changes that have been made to promote Devotional assembly attendance.

BYU's administration, which places high priority on the devotionals, has reduced the number of assemblies this year in hopes of increasing campus-wide participation and a stronger feeling of campus unity.

President Holland had much to say concerning the new policies and the reasons for them at this year's Annual University Conference:

"These assemblies offer both intellectually and spiritually so much of what ought to be a shared and stimulating university bond. We have reduced the number... to only four or five per-semester, few enough not to be a burden on even the busiest of student or teacher. But now when we hold these community experiences we intend for everyone to come."

Holland said "all but the most essential" of campus services would be closed, and he encouraged as many as possible of the campus faculty and staff to attend along with the student body.

Food Services will be using a "skeleton crew," according to Samuel Brooks, director.

"All employees will get to go to at least every other devotional," Brooks said. The

BYU creates sixteenth stake; professor named as president

Instead of 15 stakes, there are now 16. Elder Vaughn J. Featherstone, First Quorum of the Seventy of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, officially announced a new BYU stake on Aug. 31.

The new stake was the result of the division of the BYU 9th Stake. Joseph Hugh Baird, BYU 9th Stake president, made the initial request for the new stake. At the time of his request, the BYU 9th Stake consisted of 14 wards.

"A stake that has more than eight wards is considered a large stake," said Baird. "As the stake became that large, it was difficult to administer to all the wards appropriately."

Prior to the change, there were 14 BYU stakes and one Orem-college stake. The Orem-college stake consists of Utah Technical College students, BYU students and people who live in the Orem area. The new stake was added to the bottom of the BYU list making it the BYU 15th Stake.

The 15th Stake presidency includes H. Donl Peterson, BYU professor of ancient scripture and director of the Pearl of Great Price in the Religious Studies Center since 1982.

Rex C. Reeve Jr., BYU assistant professor of ancient scripture is the first counselor and J. Clifton Fleming, associate dean of the BYU Law School, will act as second counselor.

The new stake was divided using University Avenue as a boundary, said Baird. The 15th Stake will include all wards west of University Avenue which include the 2nd, 7th, 27th, 43rd, 89th, 100th, 112th and 113th.

Wards remaining in the 9th Stake include all wards east of University Avenue consisting of the 35th, 69th, 101st, 117th, 138th and 150th.

mandatory positions will be scheduled on a rotating basis. It would not be practical to leave bread rising or meat to be butchered or to reschedule drivers with perishables on vending routes, he said.

Brooks anticipates a "mob scene" after the devotional as students rush to the cafeterias for lunch. He recommends that dorm students pick up a sack lunch ahead of time.

The doors to the library will be closed at 10:50 a.m. No students will be allowed to enter between 10:50 a.m. and noon.

Students already in the library will be allowed to stay. It would take a long time to clear the building, according to Sterling Albrecht, university librarian.

The Testing Center will follow a procedure similar to the library, said L. J. "Bud" Wood, Testing Center manager.

Students in line by 10:30 a.m. will be allowed to take their tests. No other tests will be issued between 10:30 a.m. and noon, but students who have already entered will not be expected to leave, Wood said.

The BYU Bookstore will be closed at 10:45 a.m. At that time the employees will help the customers exit, said Jack Bailey, assistant manager.

All classes will be dismissed by 10:45 a.m., and classes beginning at noon will begin five minutes after the hour.

Tainted Visine injures one

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A bottle of Visine eye drops that burned the eyes of a Salt Lake area woman was tainted with chlorine, possibly from regular household bleach, health officials said.

Salt Lake City-County Health Director Dr. Harry Gibbons said tests conducted Monday on the eyedrops showed the liquid contained 11 parts per million free chlorine and 33 parts per million total chlorine.

The contaminated bottle and 36 containers of untainted samples were being sent to the Food and Drug Administration's field laboratory in Denver Monday afternoon. The bottles were being tested to determine if the solution was bleach, said Ed Sturgeon, FDA supervisory investigator.

The 24-year-old woman suffered minor burns to her eyes Sunday night after buying the eye drops that evening at a local grocery store.

"We looked at other containers of Visine and don't see any other evidence of tampering," Sturgeon said.

Gibbons and Sturgeon said the tampering likely was an isolated incident.

The woman told authorities she remembered after using the eye drops that the bottle's cellophane wrapper was missing and the safety seal appeared to be missing.

"We looked at other containers of Visine and don't see any other evidence of tampering," Sturgeon said.

Reporter accused of spying

MOSCOW (AP) — The newspaper Izvestia on Monday accused Nicholas Daniloff of using a journalist's cover to ferret out military secrets about Afghanistan and claimed the American reporter worked with an alleged CIA agent in Moscow.

The government newspaper said the imprisoned correspondent for U.S. News & World Report was charged by a military prosecutor with espionage under a law that imposes penalties ranging from seven years in prison to death.

The article elaborated on accusations already made against Daniloff and expanded the charges against the reporter beyond the scope of the original claim that he received secret documents during what was described as a secret meeting with a Soviet in a Moscow park.

The arrest of Daniloff and the espionage charges filed Sunday by Soviet authorities have provoked a sharp reaction in Washington. Reagan administration officials have said the United States views the case as "a matter of

Warning Soviets, Reagan said U.S. won't make swap

DENVER (AP) — President Reagan today said there would be no trade for the freedom of American journalist Nicholas Daniloff and warned Soviet authorities that Daniloff's continued detention could become a "major obstacle" to improved superpower relations.

"I call upon the Soviet authorities to act responsibly and quickly," said Reagan.

He called the detention of Daniloff on espionage charges "an outrage," and said if he was not freed soon, there was "no way to prevent this incident from becoming a major obstacle."

Daniloff, 51, the Moscow correspondent for U.S. News & World Report, was arrested Aug. 30 and has been charged on espionage charges.

Reagan ruled out a swap for Soviet physicist Gennadiy Zakharov, who was arrested in New York on charges of spying.

Hit-and-run death, police have suspect

Provo police have brought a suspect in for questioning in the hit-and-run death of a 15-year-old Provo youth.

Derek Larsen, 212 N. 2475 West, was riding a skateboard near the West Center viaduct at 1:20 a.m. Saturday when he was struck by a vehicle that witnesses described as being small and brown.

According to Officer George Pierpont, a small, brown vehicle is being examined for evidence. The car is a 1977 Datsun 280Z with visible damage on one of its front fenders. Crime lab technicians are inspecting the car for further damage.

utmost seriousness" that could effect Soviet-American relations.

The Soviet Union intervened in Afghanistan in 1979 and there are more than 100,000 Red Army troops in the country.

Ruth Daniloff, who was scheduled to see her husband Tuesday for the third time since his arrest on Aug. 30, called the Izvestia article "preposterous."

"It's absolutely crazy," she said. "It's just for domestic consumption while this case is being decided on a much higher level."

Izvestia tried to link Daniloff to Paul Stombaugh, a U.S. diplomat accused of being a CIA agent and expelled from the Soviet Union in June 1985.

It cited as evidence a note, allegedly given to a Soviet by Stombaugh, that said: "We would like to assure you that the letter delivered by you to the journalist on Jan. 24 got to the designated address."

Izvestia claimed Daniloff was the journalist mentioned in the letter.

Explosion in Paris kills one

PARIS (AP) — A bomb blew open the facade of the Paris city hall Monday, killing at least one person, city hall security services reported.

A city hall official said the facade of the ornate building was "completely blown out."

Police Chief Jean Paolini said the bomb had been placed "on or under a bench in the post office" on the ground floor of city hall.

First reports said 10 people were injured. The fire department later reduced it to three. Paolini said two people were "seriously injured."

The explosion occurred about 7 p.m.

Premier Jacques Chirac, who is also mayor of the capital, interrupted a internal security council meeting at the premier's office to go to the scene of the explosion. Minister of security Robert Pandraud also showed up.

City hall is an ornate building in central Paris, across the Seine River from Notre Dame Cathedral.

Police cars and ambulances have blocked the scene to establish security.

Pit crew abandons plane

LONDON (AP) — The escape of Pan Am's cockpit crew at the start of the 17-hour hijacking in Pakistan has stirred debate over whether the ancient rule that a captain never abandons ship should apply to jetliner hijackings.

An informal Associated Press survey Monday found disagreement on the issue among pilots, airline officials and the hijack victims themselves. Opinions ranged from one survivor who called the cockpit crew's action "absolutely superb" to a spokesman for a competing airline who said it was "unthinkable."

By escaping through a hatch in the roof of the Boeing 747 so terrorists boarded the plane Friday, the three-man flight crew effectively grounded the jetliner at Karachi Airport.

But it left the nearly 400 passengers and remaining crew without an exit figure and confronting four terrorists, who in the end blasted the grenades and machine-gun fire, killing 18 people.

"If one refers to the maritime world, where the tradition would be that the captain of a sinking ship be the last to leave the deck, one could find a cowardly conduct of this crew," Le Figaro, a leading French daily, editorialized Monday.

"One will never know whether they fled to protect themselves or to bring about a rapid conclusion," the newspaper said, although it said the crew should not be condemned for following airline security policies.

Terry Middleton, executive administrator of the London-based International Federation of Air Line Pilots Associations, which represents pilots in 66 nations, said the advantage of keeping a commandeered grounded could outweigh all other considerations.

Utah State Fair has fun, treats and excitement for all

By MYRON W. LEE
Assist. City Editor

From the eyes of a child, the Utah State Fair in Salt Lake City is a mirage of live animals, new foods and exciting rides.

Three-year-old Nathan Fry, of Wyomont Terrace, reported to his father Saturday night, "I saw pigs. I saw cows and I saw sheep."

He reported to his entertainers just an hour before, "I need to go to the doctor. I feel sick."

Nathan is the son of BYU student Eugene Fry, a senior from Bremerton Wa. majoring in electronics technology.

For some youngsters, attending the state fair may be a first opportunity to see, hear, touch and yes -- smell -- a variety of farm animals that will be on exhibit until Sept. 14.

The Utah State Fair is a once a year event set up as an entertainment center for Utah residents. It also serves as an outlet for State farmers to exhibit their yeild and compete for prizes awarding their summer long efforts.

This year's fair is complete with horse rides, merry-go-rounds and Ferris wheels for kids of all sizes.

The first thing Nathan wanted to do when he got to the fair was see the horses. Officials have set up a pony ride in the middle of the grounds to attract younger riders. It costs three tickets (40 cents each) to ride the ponys for a few minutes so Nate decided that it was ok if he just pet them.

After the horses it was time to see the cows. "They say moo," Nate explained. "I like the little ones," he said, probably because he could identify with them better.

The cows were nice but they are only exciting for about five minutes -- to a three-year-old.

The next stop had to be the goats. At about 8 p.m. many of the goats were enjoying part of a hay bail during milking time. Patrons of the fair gathered around and watched as the Four-H's and the Future Farmers of America milked.

Five minutes ticked away and Nate decided it was time to go see the pigs.

Another five and it was time to get on the merry-go-round. The six minute line was just about too much; the music saved him.

By the time Nate had seen all the things he had come for, the lady in the hotdog stand helped him pick out a one-dollar dog-on-a-stick, with lots of mustard. Of course cotton candy is a must at the fair -- that's why Nate thought he might need to go to the doctor.

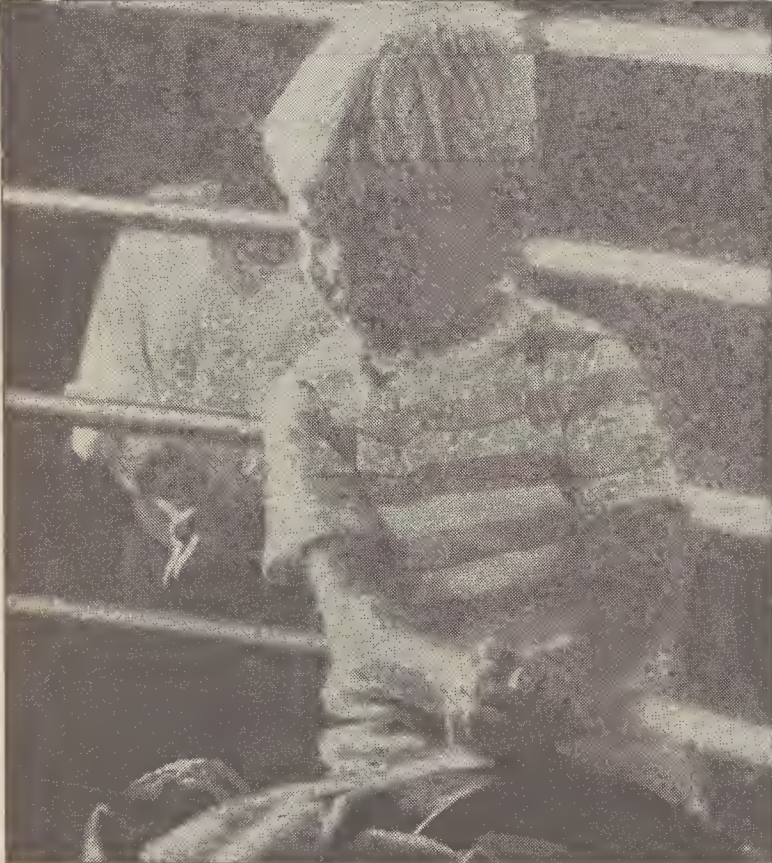

As advice to any other BYU student, or future BYU student, who might want to attend this year's state fair, Nate said, "It's fun, but sometimes it hurts."

ATTENTION BUSINESS STUDENT

A meeting to be conducted by the Associate Dean of the School of Management has been scheduled for students attending Business Fundamentals Required Classes. Soaring insurance rates create definite need for alternative medical plan

This year more parents than usual are studying applications for student accident insurance, and fewer automatically toss them out. The reason is that as sky-rocketing medical costs push insurance rates higher, employers are searching for ways to save on their employee health packages; one of the ways is to provide more limited coverage and charge higher deductibles. That translates into a bigger coverage gap and greater interest in low-cost, limited-coverage accident policies that promise to fill it. Premiums for student accident policies can vary considerably depending on the extent of coverage you select and the cost of medical care where you live. Prices, however, can be surprisingly low, typically from $8 per school year for basic in-school accident coverage to around $5 per year for 24-hour coverage. There is a trend among insurers to offer excess coverage instead of primary coverage. Under the primary approach, the policy pays appropriate benefits regardless of any other health or hospitalization insurance. Basic features of most student accident insurance plans are lump-sum payments for death and specific injuries and payment of a variety of hospital and doctor charges. The Virginia Plan, a student insurance program available to school districts throughout that state, offers a standard option policy for $7.75 a year providing "school time only" coverage that pays a maximum of $25,000 in benefits. When considering whether to buy this supplemental student insurance, view its limited coverage in conjunction with family primary health and accident insurance. Generally, the better the basic policy, the less addition is needed. Keep in mind the student policies are only accident insurance and don't cover illnesses. Student accident policies have their critics. Thomas A. Shannon, executive director of the National School Boards Association, says he's concerned some parents may believe they have more coverage than is actually offered. "The policies tend to give parents a feeling of security that's just not warranted," he says. A spokesman for Mutual of Omaha, a company that has offered student accident policies for more than 30 years, says these critics may be right but are unrealistic. Many families, he says, can't afford to pay for a full major-medical policy, and that's where companies like Mutual of Omaha fill the gap. He says employees of small companies that don't offer comprehensive insurance packages are those most likely to benefit from student coverage. BYU health insurance for students is available for $25 per semester. Information and forms can be obtained from the McDonald Health Center.

Big Band era to be relived in Herman gig

"Woody Herman and His Thundering Herd" will be in concert on Sept. 11 at 8 p.m. in the Mountain View High School Auditorium in Orem. Herman has played professionally for nearly four decades and is highly acclaimed as a big band director throughout the world. Mountain View has been trying for some time to book a high caliber big band but, until now, the circumstances have not been right. "We hope to make it a great experience for us, the school and for everybody who comes to the concert," said Fred Vander Werff, senior trumpet player for the band. The concert is being presented by the Mountain View High School Jazz Ensemble. Robert Bird, MVHS band director, said he is hoping for some real community support. The members of MVHS Jazz Ensemble are also responsible for the promotion, posters and ticket sales for the concert. Tickets are on sale at ZCMI, Mountain View High School or from any of the members of the Jazz Ensemble.

Spikers open tryouts

The BYU men's volleyball team is conducting tryouts this week in preparation to defend its national collegiate club title.

Beginning Sept. 8 through Wednesday, tryouts will take place in 144 RB at 2 p.m.

All players should come ready to play, said volleyball head coach Tom Peterson.

"The men's team looks great this year," said Peterson. "Even better than last year." However, there are a few positions open on the varsity squad, he added.

Those players not making the varsity team will be placed on the junior varsity unit. "You don't have to be a volleyball player to try-out," said Peterson. "If you think you are a good athlete then come out."

The men's team will begin competition in Provo on Oct. 17 against the University of Southern California. The Cougars also host Pepperdine, the defending NCAA champions, in October.

Last season the men's team spiked their way to 38 wins and only seven losses.

Herschel hurts Giants

IRVING, Texas (AP)—NFL newcomer Herschel Walker, subbing for the injured Tony Dorsett, scored two touchdowns, including a 10-yard burst up the middle with 1:16 to play Monday night, to carry the Dallas Cowboys to a 31-28 victory over the New York Giants.

Walker, one of the brightest USFL stars who last month signed a five-year, $5 million contract with the Cowboys, capped a 72-yard drive with his run up the middle. He was pressed into duty because Dorsett, who sprained his left ankle in the first period, was held out of the second half.

Dallas was aligned in a shotgun formation, and Walker's run seemed to catch the New York defense by surprise.

Danny White faded as if to pass, but slipped the ball to Walker. Walker, who was supposed to be used only sparingly, ran almost untouched into the end zone.

It took Dallas only six plays to take the lead after New York had built a 28-24 lead on Bobby Johnson's second touchdown reception of the game.

After tight end Mark Bavaro caught a 30-yard pass from Phil Simms, Johnson tipped an under-thrown pass.

The BYU men's soccer team fought it out last week at the Great Lakes Classic to return defeated, yet determined for this week's home opening games.

The Cougar's record stands at 0-5 going into Friday's home encounter against New Mexico.

The Cougars lost 2-1 to the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay and 3-0 Wisconsin-Milwaukee Saturday.

"I feel good; the players feel good. It gave us an opportunity to use freshmen skills and see how they blended together as a team," said BYU soccer coach Jim Dusara, despite the losing weekend.

The leading scorer Saturday was Mike Boden, a junior college transfer. Dusara commented that Boden was not expected to play coming in from the NJCAA level.

Boden has a nerve injury but still tallied three goals. He will play in the home openers.

"We expected (Cesar) Cardesa to score, but he didn't. He will this week," Dusara said of his top offensive player.

Also expected to do well is freshman Carlton Cooper from Argyle, Texas. Cooper is presently recovering from a bruised thigh.

Saturday night, the Cougars battle Cal-State Fullerton.

"Because it is back-to-back competition, it will be tougher on us," Dusara said of this week's schedule. Rest is important going into Friday's game according to the coach. At least four of his players have bowed to injury or illness.

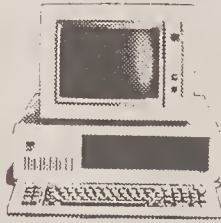

Speaking on last week's trip to Midwest, Dusara stated that improvement was needed on releasing and distributing the ball quickly and penetrating better.

"Our strength right now is in the middle of the defense," he said.

Coaches teach offense

by DAVE BUXTON
Asst. Sports Editor

Editor's note: This is the second of a two-part story on the football coaches at BYU.

Roger French, a native of Minnesota, brings a long list of impressive credentials as he starts his seventh year as a BYU assistant coach. Being coordinator of an offensive power like BYU is a hard task, but French's past accomplishments show his position is well-deserved.

While in high school in Minneapolis, "was everything," French said, saying he was all-state in football and basketball, and captain of both teams. Attending the University of Minnesota, French played linebacker, fullback and tight end, earning a starting position his sophomore year.

French played professional football for the Philadelphia Eagles and Cleveland Browns, where he sustained a career-ending injury in spring training. After the injury he began a long and successful coaching career spanning several colleges.

At the University of Minnesota, French coached the offensive line, tight ends and receivers. At the University of Wisconsin and Memphis State University he was the defensive coordinator. In 1962 his defensive unit at MSU ranked second in the nation.

French was also instrumental in coaching a Minnesota high school basketball team that won the state championship.

As offensive coordinator at BYU, French kind of oversee everything on the offense," French said. Although his direct contact with the players is limited, he said "We (offensive coaches) work pretty close in harmony with what we want to do."

French and his coordinators' responsibilities include much counseling on athletic, scholastic and personal matters. "I listen to a lot of their problems — academic, social or whatever," French said.

Returning for his 11th year working with BYU's offense is Norm Chow.

Chow has grown up with the Cougars' pace-setting offensive program, and has been instrumental in its process during his tenure.

Chow grew up on in Hawaii playing football, basketball and baseball. He is named "Athlete of the Year" at his high school, and pursued football at the University of Utah.

While at the U of U, Chow was twice selected an All-WAC offensive guard, and was an honorable mention All-American in 1968. He played professionally in the Canadian Football League, but his career was cut short by a knee injury after one year.

Before coming to BYU in 1974, Chow was head coach at a Hawaiian high school for three years.

He now specializes his coaching abilities, working with the quarterbacks and the receivers. During the games Chow analyzes the direction of the game from the press box and calls out plays and strategies to the field. Mel Olson serves double duty as offensive line coach and academic coordinator for the team. Olson is well-qualified for both positions.

Olson was an all-state running back at his Afton, Wyo., high school, and brought his talents to BYU in 1963.

He was moved to center his junior year, and responded with an All-WAC performance.

After a mission to Texas, Olson again repeated as all-conference center his senior year (1969), and was elected second team All-American.

Olson stayed on at BYU, coaching the freshman team for six years. He has worked for the varsity offensive line, specializing on the centers, for the past eleven years.

Being coach for a quarterback-protecting wall of defenders has not been without criticism for Olson. Opposing coaches constantly accuse BYU's offensive line of holding, but Olson defends his players' ability to protect the passer without cheating.

"Holding is not taught and it's not coached," said Olson. "We do a good job at what we do. We hold people."

Olson said most cheating accusations arise from the fact that opposing coaches and coaches do not like to admit they could be legally held out for such a long time.

Former BYU football star Lance Reynolds returns for his fourth year coaching the running backs.

Reynolds graduated from Granite High School in Salt Lake City, where he earned all-state honors in football.

At BYU he was an All-WAC selection and honorable mention All-American his senior year (1977), playing in the West Shrine game and the Senior Bowl.

Reynolds played pro football with the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Philadelphia Eagles as an offensive lineman before beginning a coaching career.

He coached the running backs and offensive line at Snow College in 1981, and was assistant head coach and offensive line coach for Ricks College in 1982.

The newest addition to this year's coaching staff is former Utah State head coach Chris Pella. He will act as kicking coach and recruiting coordinator for BYU.

Pella is confident in his new position with the Cougars. "I think I'm quite familiar with the program. I've played against them every year and have been a BYU fan for all but one game each year," he said.

I FEEL THE NEED FOR SPEED ... DO YOU?

Whether I'm bombing down the canyon on my bike, racing through the gates with the BYU Ski Team, or skimming the tops of trees at 180 mph in an Army helicopter, I love the feeling of going fast.

The Army ROTC program at BYU provides me with physically challenging activities such as white water rafting and Australian rappelling where I can gain the necessary confidence and physical stamina to be an Army Officer.

Army ROTC is also helping me go places fast academically. By paying for my tuition, books and some of my living expenses ROTC helps me concentrate more on my pre-med classes.

If you too feel the need for speed, then join a high speed program and become one of America's finest.

PCs source of daily news

By JULIE A. FENTON
Unitext Editor

Tired of grimy black hands? Sick of paying outrageous prices for newspaper subscriptions?

A solution can be found here at BYU through a service called Unitext published by the Daily Universe in conjunction with KSL-TV.

Unitext is a dial-in service which delivers current news, movie listings, stock market data, consumer tips, weather forecasts and other current information. Published since 1984, Unitext is a Utah Valley edition of KSL-TV's Teletext-5 service.

The information is delivered on a local number from a campus computer to callers with computer equipment and a device, called a modem, to connect that equipment to the telephone system.

The number, 378-2959, connects campus and Utah County callers to BYU equipment in the Clyde Building.

New discipline program rewards positive behavior

The launching of a hot air balloon on Friday celebrated the start of this year's discipline program at Rock Canyon Elementary School.

The program, "Extending Ourselves Upward," is designed to encourage good behavior in the students. Although the program has a new theme, it actually began at the start of the last year's school year and is not new to returning students.

Last year the theme was centered around the Grand Prix but the idea was the same — students get points for good behavior, then get rewarded with extra-curricular activities.

This year the activities are referred to as "escapes." The students were shown a movie, Night Crossing, which is about a balloon escape from East Germany.

Two improvements are being instituted in this year's program. It was discovered some students never got to go to any activities and their parents did not know they were missing out.

This year, a tracking system has been instituted that will keep track of who isn't progressing and why, and parents will be informed of this tracking.

The other improvement involved a change from negative to positive reinforcement during lunch time.

Last year a supervisor patrolled the lunch room reminding students to behave, throw garbage away, etc. This year the supervisor carries a clipboard and makes notes of excellent behavior she observes. After lunch the points earned by each class are read over the intercom.

One of the things that prompted the organization of the program, according to Principal Ray Harrison, was that the state required a school-wide discipline model. "We thought it would be good if we had a consistent program," Harrison said, "even though discipline was never a big problem. The large percentage of our students behave very well," he said.

Once the connection through the modem is made, the caller presses the computer return key once or twice. After the word "request" appears, the caller can type in the letters "ksl" and hit the return key again.

After a pause, the caller is provided with a menu listing the news and information categories available. Selections are made by pressing a single key.

In addition to the various news and information categories offered, the caller can "download" the wanted information into his personal computer for storage and future reference.

The information is updated Monday through Friday at 8 a.m., 12 p.m. and 4 p.m. and at noon on Saturday by the Unitext Editor at the Daily Universe Offices. Those interested can call KSL in Salt Lake by dialing 575-5911.

Although BYU's system is not as widely used as the Salt Lake system, it does get quite a few calls. According to Bill Porter, assistant professor of communications, the system receives between 1500 and 2000 calls per month or about 80 calls per day. These figures are not conclusive because it does not include many of the callers who use their own home computers.

The average call is usually no more than two or three minutes. However, a caller can stay connected for up to six minutes before being automatically disconnected.
